Overview of disease Progression

The symptoms of Alzheimer's disease worsen over time, although the rate at which the disease progresses varies. On average, a person with Alzheimer's disease lives four to eight years after diagnosis, but can live as long as 20 yrs, depending on other factors.

Changes in the brain related to Alzheimer's begin years before any signs of the disease. This time period, which can last for years, is referred to as preclinical Alzheimer's disease.

The stages below provide an overall idea of how abilities change once symptoms appear and should only be used as a general guide. They are separated into three different categories: mild Alzheimer's disease, moderate Alzheimer's disease and severe Alzheimer's disease.

Be aware that it may be difficult to place a person with Alzheimer's in a specific stage as stages may overlap.

Mild Alzheimer's disease (early-stage)

In the early stages of Alzheimer's, a person may function independently. He or she may still drive, work and be part of social activities. Despite this, the person may feel as if he or she is having memory lapses, such as forgetting familiar words or the location of everyday objects.

Friends, family or neighbors begin to notice difficulties. During a detailed medical interview, doctors may be able to detect problems in memory or concentration.

Common difficulties include:

- Trouble remembering names when introduced to new people
- Having greater difficulty performing tasks in social or work settings
- Forgetting material that one has just read
- Losing or misplacing a valuable object
- Increasing trouble with planning or organizing

Moderate Alzheimer's disease (middle-stage)

Moderate Alzheimer's is typically the longest stage and can last for many years. As the disease progresses, the person with Alzheimer's will require a greater level of care.

You may notice the person with Alzheimer's confusing words, getting frustrated or angry, or acting in unexpected ways, such as refusing to bathe. Damage to nerve cells in the brain can make it difficult to express thoughts and perform routine tasks. At this point, symptoms will be noticeable to others and may include:

- Forgetfulness of events or about one's own personal history
- Changes in sleep patterns, such as sleeping during the day and becoming restless at night
- An increased risk of wandering and becoming lost
- Personality and behavioral changes, including suspiciousness and delusions or compulsive, repetitive behavior like hand-wringing or tissue shredding.

Severe Alzheimer’s disease (late-stage)

In the final stage of this disease, individuals lose the ability to respond to their environment, to carry on a conversation and, eventually, to control movement. They may still say words or phrases, but communicating pain becomes difficult. As memory and cognitive skills continue to worsen, personality changes may take place and individuals need extensive help with daily activities.

At this stage, individuals may:

- Require full-time, around-the-clock assistance with daily personal care
- Lose awareness of recent experiences as well as of their surroundings
- Require high levels of assistance with daily activities and personal care
- Experience changes in physical abilities, including the ability to walk, sit and, eventually, swallow
- Have increasing difficulty communicating
- Become vulnerable to infections, especially pneumonia
10 Resources Every Senior Should Know About

Plenty of organizations provide seniors with free or low-cost help with meals, transportation, housing, finances and more.

You can still live independently, even if there are certain tasks you can't do around the house.

Key Takeaways

Look for local transit services in your area if you no longer feel comfortable driving.

National organizations like Meals on Wheels and Catholic Charities will provide help with food and meals.

Most of us would prefer to live independently for as long as we can before going to an assisted living facility. And while that’s not always possible, sometimes all it takes is one simple solution for seniors to remain in their homes, says Edwin Walker, deputy assistant secretary for aging at the Administration on Aging within the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

Whether they need help preparing meals, seek rides to the doctor’s office, or could use some assistance with light chores around the house, these 10 places can help seniors get the care they need, for either little or no cost at all.

1. Your local agency on aging. “They’re a wealth of knowledge. (The agencies don’t provide direct services, but they can direct you to the organizations that do.) Assistance for seniors can vary from agency to agency, but case managers can usually arrange for meal delivery, transportation to and from appointments, and in-house services like housekeeping, medication management, and personal care. They can also recommend family caregiver support programs in your area. Find the agency in your ZIP code via the Administration on Aging’s website, or by calling 800-677-1116 to speak to a specialist.

2. Eldercare Locator. This web tool provides plenty of other resources, too: It connects older people and caregivers with local organizations and trustworthy sources of information. Services also vary depending on where you live, but case managers can often help you find legal services, transportation, housing alternatives, employment services, financial assistance, and more. To find out what’s available in your area, call 800-677-1116, or visit Eldercare Locator Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. EST to chat with a specialist.

3. Catholic Charities. This organization is a national network that serves people regardless of their religious, social, or economic backgrounds. Members can provide seniors with nutritious meals, adult day care, and more. Find an agency in your area at CatholicCharitiesUSA.org.

4. A local religious establishment. It doesn’t have to be the one you attend. Continued after recipes.
Honey Mustard Grilled Chicken

Prep 15 minutes       Cook 20 minutes        Ready In 35 minutes

1/3 cup Dijon mustard
1/4 cup honey
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 teaspoon steak sauce
4 skinless, boneless chicken breast halves

Preheat the grill for medium heat.

In a shallow bowl, mix the mustard, honey, mayonnaise, and steak sauce. Set aside a small amount of the honey mustard sauce for basting, and dip the chicken into the remaining sauce to coat.

Lightly oil the grill grate. Grill chicken over indirect heat for 18 to 20 minutes, turning occasionally, or until juices run clear. Baste occasionally with the reserved sauce during the last 10 minutes. Watch carefully to prevent burning!

Penne with Roasted Summer Vegetables and Ricotta Salata

1 small eggplant, diced
1 medium squash, diced
1/2 pt. grape tomatoes, halved
3 tbsp. extra-virgin olive oil
Sea salt

Freshly ground pepper
12 oz. penne pasta
3/4 c. grated ricotta salata, plus more for serving
1/4 c. finely chopped basil, plus more for serving

Preheat oven to 425 degrees F.

Arrange eggplant on one half of baking sheet and zucchini on other half. On another baking sheet, arrange tomatoes. Drizzle vegetables with olive oil and season with salt and pepper. Toss to combine. Roast vegetables until golden, about 20 minutes, stirring halfway through.

Meanwhile, bring large pot of salted water to boil. Cook penne according to package directions. Drain, reserving 1 cup cooking liquid, then return drained pasta to pot.

Remove vegetables from oven and scrape into pasta using spatula. Add ricotta salata and 1/2 cup of pasta water, stirring to combine. (Add an additional 1/4 cup liquid to create a creamier pasta, if desired.) Stir in chopped basil and season with salt and pepper.

Serve pasta in bowls, garnished with more ricotta salata and basil.

Ricotta salata—ricotta’s saltier cousin—adds a sharp tang to this summer pasta dish.

Churches tend to know who can provide services that the elderly might need, such as snow removal, home repairs, or transportation to appointments. And the Association of Jewish Family & Children’s Agencies also provide assistance in many communities, which you can find through their online directory.

5. Your public library. Looking for a little research help? Try visiting the local library. Most provide free Internet access and have staff members who can help you search for resources that will help you live independently.

6. Local transit services. Many cities offer some type of help to seniors with transportation needs. For instance, elders who live in New York City can get free van service to and from medical appointments and meals, planned activities at senior centers, and more through Project Cart. Other cities offer help as well. In Austin, Texas, West Austin Caregivers has compiled a list of transportation services for seniors; in Southern California, the Jewish Family Service of San Diego offers a host of transportation options for people in their area.

7. AARP. It’s one of the best-known foundations in the country, and for good reason: Its members can connect you with the sources you need to find help with local housing, health care, and meals. Visit the AARP’s website, or call 888-OUR-AARP (888-687-2277), to find assistance in your state.

8. State Health Insurance Assistance Program (SHIP). SHIP provides free health benefits counseling services for Medicare beneficiaries and their families or caregivers. (SHIP isn’t affiliated with the insurance industry.) “Its mission is to educate and counsel seniors so they can make informed healthcare benefit decisions. Visit their website for more information about your state’s program.

9. The American Bar Association. Its local branches can help you find legal assistance that will help elders manage their finances, or offer them additional protection if they’ve been a victim of fraud or abuse.

10. Meals on Wheels. This organization provides nutritious meals to homebound people in almost every community across the country. Volunteers not only deliver meals to residents’ homes, but they will also check in on shut-ins and provide them with companionship. Some programs will even lend seniors assistance with home repairs and transportation. Find out what’s available near you at MealsonWheels.org, or by calling 888-998-6325.

Yellow Dot Program:
A Project of the New York State Sheriffs’ Association
To help emergency responders provide prompt care in the event of an accident, a completed card is placed in your car’s glove compartment. You would complete one card for each person who regularly occupies the vehicle. You place the Yellow Dot decal on the rear driver’s side window to alert emergency responders to look in the glove compartment for your emergency medical information.

July 4th Fun Facts!

★ The stars on the original American flag were arranged in a circle to ensure that all colonies were equal. The design of the flag has been officially modified 26 times since it was created in 1777.

★ Benjamin Franklin proposed the wild turkey as the national bird, but was overruled by John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, who wanted the bald eagle. Regarding the bald eagle, Franklin wrote: “… he is a bird of bad moral character, he does not get his living honestly…”

★ The first Fourth of July party held at the White House was in 1801 while John Adams was President.

★ Each year, the U.S. spends more than $200 million importing fireworks from China.

★ Sadly, the majority of our nation’s flags and patriotic paraphernalia in relation to the Fourth of July are actually made in China and Mexico, not the U.S.

★ The famous Fourth of July event, Nathan’s Hot Dog Eating Contest, started back in 1916. It was supposedly started as a way to settle a dispute among four immigrants as to who was the most patriotic.

★ Samuel Wilson was a meat packer who provided food for U.S. soldiers in the early 1800's. He stamped the initials U.S. on his packaged products and supposedly some soldiers began to joke that it stood for Uncle Sam, giving way to the symbolic “Uncle Sam” of the United States government.
